I wood have wrote a poem but I turned into a tree-maybe try again next fall.

Fred Wah

The delight of making inner an outer world for me is when I tree myself and my slight voice screams glee to him now preparing his craft for the Bifrost Kerykeion he said, the shore now a cold March mist moves down through the cow pasture out of the trees among, among

Iron 8/9 marks the end of the first series of Iron. Iron 10 will be a series of sketches by Gladys, out in December.

(Special Notes)

Some of this stuff has appeared elsewhere. Neap Hoover's Knight Inlet was stolen earlier by Stan Persky for the Georgia Straight Writing Supplement. Some of Brian Fawcett's Boulder Creek appeared in Iron 6. Present version is final (he sd) or at least complete. Gladys Hindmarch's Which Way to Go is the 14th of a series of stories. The inscription in the table of contents was written by Peter Magnani, thanks to Ezra Pound & others.

Sharon Fawcett, Jerry Kelley, Peg Kelley, Peter Magnani and Ralph Maud made this all possible.
